

The masters of the Master Plan

AUSTRALIAN-BASED AIRBIZ continues to provide specialist strategic planning services on airport projects worldwide, with services ranging across the airport sector.

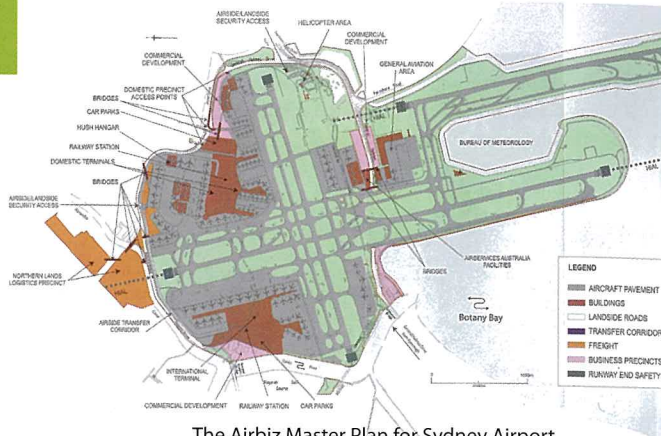

They've initiated strategic Master Plans for Hong Kong, Sydney, Perth and Wellington airports, major runway and terminal developments for Delhi and Calgary, terminal development planning for Darwin, Mumbai, Brisbane, Adelaide and Christchurch, new automated processing systems for airlines and border control agencies, simulation modeling for Edmonton, Melbourne, Winnipeg and major terminal developments in the Middle East.

Playing a key role in the preparation of the Sydney Airport Master Plan, Airbiz responsibilities included demand analysis, strategic planning and conceptual layouts for the airfield and the terminal precincts.

With the public exhibition period of the Preliminary Draft Master Plan now complete, Airbiz has assisted in ensuring all comments made by interested parties during the consultation period have been addressed and given due regard. The Draft Master Plan has been submitted to the Minister for Infrastructure, Transport, Regional Development and Local Government for deliberation.

As a lead consultant in the Hong Kong International Airport 2030 Master Plan, Airbiz's role included the production of the busy day schedule, gate demand and busy hour analysis, airside planning and terminal planning. The Master Plan includes the planning for a third runway and terminal facilities to match the increased airport capacity.

The Airbiz Master Plan for Sydney Airport.

Airbiz recently undertook terminal development strategies for input into the Master Plans for both Brisbane and Perth International Airports. The scope included planning and analysis to determine the extent of terminal, landside and airside development for the 20-year Master Plans.

As part of its continued global expansion North America, Airbiz opened new offices in Vancouver and Montreal last year.

Stemming from this is Airbiz's involvement with Calgary International Airport, which is planning a major terminal expansion to accommodate international and trans-border operations. The involvement of Airbiz in both Calgary's terminal and runway projects will provide efficient planning, particularly in relation to common airfield facilities.
